

MISSED WORK

Adam Gray won't do his job. In the California assembly he was paid six figures to vote on our behalf. But often didn't even show up to work – he missed more than one hundred fifty votes.

In 2022, Adam Gray's annual assembly member salary was $119,702:

As of January 18, 2022, Gray's annual assembly member salary is $119,702.

According to a Legal Opinion from the Deputy Attorney General, law states that these salaries are appropriations.

Your question arises because of the tension between this section and section 4 of Article III of the California Constitution. Section 4 states that, "Except as provided in subsection (b) [relating to compensation of judges], salaries of elected state officials may not be reduced during their term of office. Laws that set these salaries are appropriations."⁴ This provision was added to the Constitution in 1972. As I understand it, the crux of your question is whether section 8 supersedes section 4, such that if the Commission adopted a resolution reducing the salary or benefits of an elected state officer, the reduction would take effect on the first Monday of the next December following adoption of the resolution. After carefully reviewing the relevant law, my conclusion is that section 8 does not supersede section 4 in that manner. Instead, both sections are to be given effect, so that the Commission may adjust state officers' salaries and benefits upward at any time, but any adjustment that constitutes a reduction in salary would not take effect until the end of an affected officer's current term in office.
