

Will Rollins supports ending tax cuts for middle income families, including a child tax credit. If Rollins gets his way, the average Californian will have to pay an extra $3,600 more per year.

Will Rollins opposes the Tax Cuts And Jobs Act.

(Twitter, 10/28/22)

(Twitter, 10/27/22)

The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Increased The Child Tax Credit From $1,000 To $2,000. “The TCJA lowered most individual income tax rates, including the top marginal rate from 39.6 to 37 percent. The law maintained the seven-bracket rate structure, but the income thresholds were updated. TCJA increased the standard deduction to $12,400 for single filers and $24,800 for married filers (tax year 2020), compared with $6,500 (single) and $9,550 (married) under prior law. The bill eliminated the personal exemption and a variety of other miscellaneous deductions along with limiting certain itemized deductions like the state and local tax (SALT) deduction, mortgage interest deduction (MID), and charitable contribution deduction. TCJA increased the Child Tax Credit (CTC) from $1,000 to $2,000—the first $1,400 of which is refundable—and increased the income thresholds from $110,000 to $400,000.” (“Tax Cuts And Jobs Act,” Tax Foundation, Accessed 8/2/24)

Letting The Tax Cuts And Jobs Act Expire In 2025 Would Increase The Average California Household’s Taxes By $3,636 In 2026. “At the end of 2025, the individual tax provisions in the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) expire all at once. Without congressional action, most taxpayers will see a notable tax increase relative to current policy in 2026.” (Expiring TCJA Tax Provisions In 2026 Would Produce Substantial Tax Hike Across The U.S.,” Tax Foundation, 5/7/24)

(Expiring TCJA Tax Provisions In 2026 Would Produce Substantial Tax Hike Across The U.S.," Tax Foundation, 5/7/24)