

Corporate Ties – Apple Inc.

Riley claimed he has a “really strong and proven track-record” when asked why voters should trust him to take on corporations:

- VIDEO: Riley claimed he has a “really strong and proven track-record” when asked why voters should trust him to take on corporations after previously working for big corporations. HOST: “There are some who might say, ‘Well Josh, you were working for some of those big corporations that now you say are kind of profiting in a way that may be hurting the everyday American.’ What do you say to those who might look at your background and say well maybe you’re not the right person to get that job done.” RILEY: “I have a really strong and proven track-record on taking on big fights for working families.” (Solomon Syed, "Candidate for Congress discusses the issues with News10," News 10 - ABC Albany, 8/11/22)

- Riley represented Apple Inc. in a class action lawsuit brought by Plaintiff Freedom Watch, Inc. against Google, Facebook, Twitter and Apple pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure alleging the illegal suppression and/or censorship of politically Conservative media content by Defendants.

I. INTRODUCTION AND CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS Plaintiff Freedom Watch, Inc. (“Freedom Watch”), individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, bring this suit as a class action pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The class is defined as all politically conservative organizations, entities and/or individuals who create and/or distribute media content and advocacy who have experienced illegal suppression and/or censorship of their media content by Defendants. This class meets all the criteria required by Federal Civil Rule 23(a).

Riley represented Apple in a House Judiciary Committee anti-trust investigation into big tech which found that Apple and other big-tech companies are acting like the “monopolies we last saw in the era of oil barons and railroad tycoons”:

- Riley “worked with a Jenner & Block team representing Apple Inc. in a House Judiciary Committee antitrust inquiry, according to the firm.” “Riley, based in Washington, represents clients in congressional investigations. He previously worked with a Jenner & Block team representing Apple Inc. in a House Judiciary Committee antitrust inquiry, according to the firm. Jenner & Block ‘has the nation’s premier congressional investigations practice,’ Riley said. ‘That is going to be a really interesting place to be as we go into a new administration.’” (Roy Strom, “Jenner & Block Adds to Ex-Boies Schiller Hires with D.C.’s Riley,” Bloomberg Law, 1/8/21)
- Per correspondence between Rep. Jim Jordan and Chairman Jerry Nadler, during the Summer of 2020, Jenner & Block represented a client in the US House of Representatives Judiciary Committee antitrust investigation involving the CEOs of Alphabet, Amazon, Apple and Facebook.

On July 1, 2020, Representative David Cicilline, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Antitrust, Commercial, and Administrative Law, announced in an interview that the chief executive officers of Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, and Facebook would testify before the Subcommittee as part of the Committee’s ongoing investigation into the adequacy of current antitrust law.¹ Although Republicans look forward to this hearing, we were surprised to learn it would not occur at the full Committee—the venue that makes the most sense given the scope of the Committee’s investigation, the broad interest from Members of both parties who do not serve on the Subcommittee, and the significance of the witnesses who will testify. Therefore, on behalf of Republican Members who you propose to exclude from participating in this hearing, I respectfully request that you reconsider this matter and convene the hearing at the full Committee so that all Members may participate fully and equally.

⁵ Email from Subcommittee on Antitrust, Commercial, and Administrative Law Majority Staff to Robert Kelner, Partner, Covington & Burling LLP, Angelle Smith Baugh, Special Counsel, Covington & Burling LLP, and Perrin Cooke, Associate, Covington & Burling LLP (Jul. 2, 2020, 10:58 AM ET) (on file with the Committee); Email from Subcommittee on Antitrust, Commercial and Administrative Law Majority Staff to Emily M. Loeb, Partner, Jenner & Block LLP, and Thomas J. Perrelli, Partner, Jenner & Block LLP (Jul. 2, 2020, 10:58 AM ET) (on file with the Committee).

(Rep. Jim Jordan, Letter to Judiciary Chairman Nadler RE: Planning of Antitrust Hearing on Big-Tech, US House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary, 7/7/20)

- House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerry Nadler declared that Amazon, Apple, Facebook, and Google “have become the kinds of monopolies we last saw in the era of oil barons and railroad tycoons.” “To put it simply, companies that once were scrappy, underdog startups that challenged the status quo have become the kinds of monopolies we last saw in the era of oil barons and railroad tycoons. Although these firms have delivered clear benefits to society, the dominance of Amazon, Apple, Facebook, and Google has come at a price. These firms typically run the marketplace while also competing in it-a position that enables them to write one set of rules for others, while they play by another, or to engage in a form of their own private quasi regulation that is unaccountable to anyone but themselves.” (Rep. Jerrold Nadler, “Investigation of Competition in Digital Markets: I. Introduction: A. Chair’s Forward,” US House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary, 10/2020)

In his only 10 months as a lawyer working for Jenner & Block – from January-October 2021 – Riley represented Apple Inc. in a case involving the removal of the application Parler from AWS Servers and the Google and Apple App Stores:

- Riley worked at Jenner & Block from January 2021 – October 2021 as a Partner.

(Joshua Riley, LinkedIn, Accessed 8/26/22)

- While at Jenner & Block, Riley represented the major corporation Apple Inc. in a highly-political case that involved the removal of the application Parler from AWS Servers and the Google and Apple App Stores.
