Kamala Harris Supports Renewing The Assault Weapons Ban. (Kamala Harris, Twitter, 7/27/24)

(Kamala Harris, Twitter, 7/27/24)

Since 2016, Bernie Sanders Has Supported Banning Assault Weapons. "But since 2016, Sanders, who's now running for the presidential nomination in 2020, has taken a different tack on guns. He's reiterated the need to expand background checks and ban assault weapons. He's pointed to his broader support for gun control, and co-sponsored several Senate gun violence bills. In public appearances and social media, he's highlighted his own past remarks, going back to the late 1980s, in which he called for a ban on assault weapons." (German Lopez, "Bernie Sanders's Record On Gun Control, Explained," Vox, 3/4/19)

In A 2016 Speech Sanders Said He Believes Assault Weapons, As Well As Magazines Holding More Than Ten Bullets, Should Be Banned Nationwide. "Bernie believes assault weapons, as well as magazines holding more than ten bullets, should be banned nationwide. Why? In a recent speech, Bernie explained that, in his view, assault weapons should be categorically banned:" (Feel The Bern, 7/16/15)

AOC Supports Making It A Crime To Sell, Manufacture, Transfer A Semiautomatic Assault Weapon. Congresswoman Ocasio-Cortez is a strong supporter of gun reform legislation. She supported the Bipartisan Gun Safety Bill that was signed into law in the summer of 2022. The bill expands background checks for prospective gun buyers between the ages of 18 and 21, expands an existing law that prevents people convicted of domestic abuse from owning a gun, includes funds to encourage states to create so-called red flag laws that would allow entities to petition a court to remove guns from anyone deemed to be a threat to themselves or others, and funds school safety measures and mental health. She also supports legislation that would establish new background check requirements for firearm transfers between private parties, as well as a bill that would make it a crime to knowingly import, sell, manufacture, transfer, or possess a semiautomatic assault weapon or large-capacity ammunition feeding device, such as the guns used in the Uvalde shooting." (Gun Reform, Alexandria Ocasio Cortez, 2/6/26)

On The Assault Weapons Ban, Ocasio Cortez Said "It's Absolutely Something I Support." Liberal Democrats are pushing legislation to ban assault weapons, hoping to flex their muscles with the new House majority to revive the controversial prohibition on military-style firearms that expired 15 years ago. The effort by progressives will pose a challenge for House

Democratic leaders and test how far they are willing to go when it comes to gun control. Party leaders have made clear they intend to tackle gun reform early this year but plan on prioritizing a background check bill that enjoys bipartisan backing on Capitol Hill and the overwhelming support of voters nationwide. Yet a large and growing group of liberal Democrats is eyeing bolder reforms, pressing colleagues this week to sign on to an assault weapons ban that's less popular with the public and risks highlighting internal divisions. For many progressives, the background check expansion is just the start of a more comprehensive approach that would include a ban on military-style weapons. "I think that we can do both, and I think there's more of a danger in saying, 'We're going to do universal background checks, and consider this issue addressed,'" said Rep. Katherine Clark (D-Mass.), vice chairwoman of the House Democratic Caucus. Clark said she met over the weekend with a group of mothers whose children were killed by guns. And it's advocates like them who are pressing Democrats to take an aggressive approach. "They are very eager that we pass the universal background check, but that we keep going. And I think we heard clearly in the midterms that people are eager for us to do comprehensive gun safety legislation," Clark said. "And for me that includes the assault weapons ban." Although such a ban would go nowhere in the GOP-controlled Senate, Democrats have been emboldened by the midterm election results and view gun reform as one of the issues that fueled their return to the majority. With that in mind, Rep. David Cicilline (D-R.I.), chairman of the Democrats' messaging arm, is circulating a letter seeking co-sponsors for legislation banning assault weapons. It is expected to be released within the next couple weeks, a spokesman said Tuesday. A similar bill, which Cicilline introduced in the previous Congress, won the support of 178 lawmakers; the current measure has support from 109, but that number is expected to grow as more members, including some of the most prominent liberal freshmen, learn of the campaign. "It's absolutely something I support," said Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.). "I've talked about that at length with my community." Hill Said Giving ICE $75 Billion Was A Poor Budget Choice And Called For Returning The Agency's Funding Levels To 2024 Levels

Hill Said Giving ICE $75 Billion Was A Poor Budget Choice. "Hill said Congress also needs to hammer down on a national debt that's grown significantly over the last five years. He said some actions, such as the ongoing war in Iran and Congress's decision to give the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) $75 billion, are poor budget choices. 'We need to start figuring out how much we spend outside of America, that everyone in America is paying their fair share and we need to focus on the working people,' Hill said." VIDEO: Hill Called For Returning ICE Funding To 2024 Levels. MODERATOR: "Bill, it's your turn to talk about whether limits should be put on ice." HILL: "I guess I'll echo hell yes. We have we have an [inaudible] agency that's not abiding by the norms of the US or even the laws. It is not making Americans feel safer. It's making Americans feel unsafe and that's wrong. We need Congress to step up and hold these people accountable. We need to make sure that they are doing the job that we want our enforcement to do in our nation This institution has been around for 20 some odd years and only recently has it turned into the institution that serves fear, derision, murder, and the targeting of minorities. We need to return their funding levels to 2024. We need to have congressional oversight over these people and we need to make sure that they're abiding by the views and laws of the United States of America and not just doing what they want every single day for a regime that needs to be changed."
