Support For Biden

In 2023, Pulido Said He Would Vote For Biden Again But In 2025 Said He Wanted To Cry When He Saw Biden Become Confused During A 2024 Debate With President Trump

Pulido Said He Wanted To Cry When He Saw Biden Become Confused During His Debate With President Trump. "When I saw the debate between President Biden and Trump President Trump I wanted to cry. When he got lost in his thoughts and the way that whole thing played out, I knew we were in big big trouble." ("EXCLUSIVE: Latin Grammy star quits music to run for Congress as Texas Democrat," MSNBC, 9/19/25) @6:20

In 2023, Pulido Said He Voted For Biden And Would Vote For Biden Again. "He said migration will continue, and workforce needs are not being filled in Texas and throughout the country, so Democrats could proactively seize the issue. 'I voted for Joe Biden and I will vote for him again. But not having come over here to this, I think, has been a mistake,' said Pulido." Cost Of Housing

While Biden Was President, The Median Home Price Jumped Over 27%, And Interest Rates Have Risen From 2.8% To 7.2%. "Since Mr. Biden became president, the median home price has jumped over 27%, and interest rates have risen from 2.8% to 7.2%. … President Biden and his allies in Congress have pushed for more federal spending, with no means to finance their multitrillion-dollar budgets. That has caused the Treasury to borrow well over $1 trillion a year, which in turn has prompted the Federal Reserve to create trillions of dollars to finance the borrowing spree. The predictable result of too much money relative to the size of the economy was inflation, as prices everywhere rose. The housing market has not been spared from this relentless upward march in prices, with both median rents and mortgage payments at all-time highs, the result of a double whammy from high prices and high interest rates. Cost Of Groceries

While Biden Was President, Egg Prices Rose 40.9%, And Other Consumer Stapes Such As Flour, Sugar, And Butter Skyrocketed, Increasing 38.3%, 30.7% And 35.9%, Respectively. "Because prices have risen an average of 19.3% during Mr. Biden's tenure, the average real, or inflation-adjusted, weekly paycheck has shrunk by about $50, or 4.4%. Today's larger paychecks buy less, and consumers are being squeezed by higher prices everywhere. This drop in purchasing power has many families relying on credit cards to make ends meet, pushing outstanding balances up to $1.1 trillion, even while the interest rate on that debt is at a record high. … Eggs are just one example of this phenomenon. They have historically been a relatively inexpensive source of protein, vitamin D and other nutrients. As more Americans swap purchases of things like beef with eggs to save money, the higher demand for eggs has pushed prices up much faster than the average inflation rate for food. That's a key reason why egg prices are up 40.9% under Bidenomics. And eggs aren't the only things at the grocery store that will induce sticker shock. Prices of other consumer staples such as flour, sugar and butter have skyrocketed in price under Mr. Biden's tenure, increasing 38.3%, 30.7% and 35.9%, respectively." (E.J. Antoni, "Biden Pretends Rising Food Prices Are Not a Problem," The Heritage Foundation, 9/5/23)

Cost Of Gas

Biden's Tax On American Energy Would Impose A $62.2 Billion Tax On American Energy Producers. "President Biden's call for a windfall profits tax – his Administration's latest attack on American energy that will drive up the price at the pump for American families – would impose a new $62.2 billion tax on American energy producers, according to a Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT) analysis of such a proposal already introduced in Congress. JCT's analysis also confirmed that such a proposal would harm domestic energy exploration by pushing jobs overseas and increase American dependence on foreign energy production."
